EAST LIVERPOOL, O., SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 1901.

TWO CENTS

FROM PLAY TO HIS DEATH IN ONLY HALF AN HOUR

Little Harold Means, of the East End, Dies Under Sad Conditions.

SEVERE SURGICAL OPERATION

Was Necessary, But the Little Fellow Died As It Was Finished.

HAD TAKEN AN ANAESTHETIC

The Child Was Suffering From a Tumor on the Brain And the Operation Was Difficult And Delicate. Parents Prostrated.

Harold, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Means, of St. George street, died while undergoing a surgical operation at about noon yesterday. The operation had just been completed when the little one succumbed to the effects of the anaesthetic and the shock and ceased to breathe. The operation was a very delicate one, and is said to be as difficult as any with which surgeons have to deal.

The tumor was a fungus growth on the meningeal covering the brain about an inch above the left ear. It had absorbed the skull bone clear through at this point, forming a very small opening through which the discharge passed. It was necessary to remove a piece of skull about the size of a silver dollar and also the meningeal covering on which the growth was found. The tissue of the brain was not disturbed. It was thought the operation had been successfully completed when the child suddenly gave a slight stir and all was over. Drs. Hobbs, Bailey and Marshall, who performed the operation, worked with the boy for nearly half an hour in an attempt to revive him, but their efforts were without success.

Drs. Hobbs and Bailey had started to perform the operation about three weeks ago, but after examining the skull found that it would be more delicate than they had expected and consequently it was postponed until yesterday, when Dr. Marshall was called to assist them. The fungus growth had increased in size greatly since the physicians had examined it, and the only possible hope for the child's life lay in the operation.

The boy was playing in the yard when the physicians arrived and when called to the house begged for the doctors not to chloroform him. The anæsthetic was administered and he was placed on the table at about 11 o'clock. The operation consumed about half an hour's time. Mr. Means remained in the room with the physicians.

Mrs. Means has been almost distract with grief since the result was made known to her, and it is feared that she may suffer a nervous collapse.

The affair is one of the saddest that ever occurred in the East End, and the family have the sympathy of the entire community.

The funeral will take place at the home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. N. M. Crowe officiating.

LOOKS DISCOURAGING

FOURTH OF JULY WILL PASS UNOBSERVED IN THIS CITY.

Nothing Done As Yet to Arrange for a Celebration—Enthusiasm Lacking.

It is quite apparent that East Liverpool will have no Fourth of July celebration this year. As yet there has been no move made in that direction, and although Mayor Davidson has done everything possible to arouse public interest in an effort to properly commemorate the event, he has thus far been unable to accomplish anything.

The only explanation that is offered for the indifference shown by the citizens of East Liverpool is the fact that a circus is coming to town. The claim was made more than a week ago by a number of business men, who were interviewed by a reporter, that the coming of the elephant had so absorbed the minds of the citizens that the matter of a Fourth of July celebration had come to be regarded as a secondary consideration. Their claim seems to be the only logical explanation of the situation, however absurd it may appear. Aside from the usual doings of the small boy there will likely be no indication of the observance of one of the most important of natal days.

Mayor Davidson says he does not propose to do anything further unless he is given more encouragement than he has received thus far. He has been agitating the holding of a public meeting, but nobody seems disposed to assist him in getting the matter started. The time is so near at hand that unless immediate action is taken there will be little use in attempting to do anything, and if the celebration as proposed by the mayor cannot be creditably conducted it would be far better not to make the attempt.

Many of the merchants have expressed their willingness to lend their assistance in any way they can, but what is lacking is a man capable to take the matter in hand and see to it that nothing is overlooked in making the undertaking a success.

NEARLY KILLED BOY

LIGHTNING STRUCK A CHIMNEY AND IT FELL ON HIM.

Little Edward Franklin the Victim of a Singular Accident, Will Probably Live.

During the heavy storm this afternoon lightning struck the chimney on the house of Martin Bower, Jackson street, causing a portion of it to fall. Edward, the 10-year-old son of Thomas Franklin, was running past at the time and a piece of the falling chimney struck him on the head. He was rendered unconscious, but under the efforts of two doctors soon regained his senses and will probably live. His skull was not fractured. His home is at the corner of Seventh and Jackson streets and he is 10 years old.

The chimney is of terra cotta. In its descent it struck the limbs of a tree, probably saving the boy's life. The house was not otherwise damaged.

BRIDE OF JUNE UNDER ARREST

ANOTHER MAN WITH HER OHIO WELL REPRESENTED

Sensational Story Told By a Harrisburg Constable Who Arrested a Pennsylvania Couple at an East Liverpool Hotel.

A Harrisburg, Pa., constable named Johnson caused somewhat of a sensation at the Thompson house yesterday by placing two guests of that hotel under arrest and taking them from the city. The prisoners, Mrs. May McCormick, of Harrisburg, and H. R. Mink, of Pittsburgh, were located by the officer after a search of several days, which was finally successful.

According to the story told by the constable to Chief Thompson, the woman in the case was married two weeks ago at Harrisburg. She and her husband arrived at Pittsburgh last Monday morning and were on their way to Chicago. Just as McCormick was buying tickets at the union depot his wife met another man named Slusser, whom she had formerly been acquainted with, and before the husband was aware of what was taking place, the woman left with Slusser.

McCormick got track of the couple, as did also the wife of the man who was with Mrs. McCormick. Mink, who is said to be a friend of Slusser, came to his rescue just as Mrs. Slusser was about to have her husband arrested. Mrs. McCormick was then in a dilemma, and as a last resort she agreed to leave with Mink. The two boarded a train and arrived in this city some time Monday.

How the constable learned that they were in East Liverpool is not known. He reached here soon after their arrival with a warrant for Mrs. McCormick, but was unable to locate her.

Thursday afternoon he went to the postoffice and inquired whether or not Mrs. McCormick had been getting mail there. The mail was not known but the officer learned that letters for May Bryan had been received at the office.

Thursday evening the constable stationed himself at the office and some time later the woman called there. Following her the constable learned that she was staying at the Thompson house with Mink, and the two, it is alleged, were registered as man and wife.

Securing the services of Chief Thompson Constable Johnson

went to the hotel and placed Mrs. McCormick under arrest. Mink agreed to accompany the officer to Pittsburgh without a warrant, though he expected to be arrested on reaching that city. The party left yesterday morning.

Previous to having obtained his information at the postoffice concerning the woman, the constable, in company with Officer Mahoney, visited a number of dry goods stores in the city. It was learned that a woman answering the description of Mrs. McCormick had purchased a number of dresses and other wearing apparel and was seen to have a large sum of money. Mink is also said to have been well supplied with change, and during the time the couple stayed here they both lived in royal style. It is not known where the woman got the money.

Mrs. McCormick's maiden name was Bryan. She is attractive appearing and a very intelligent woman.

A GOOD LETTER FROM M.C. WRIGHT

The Y. M. C. A. Secretary Interestingly Describes the Jubilee Convention.

OHIO WELL REPRESENTED

The Meeting a Memorable One in Many Respects—Impressive Scenes Noted—A Visit to Several Historic Spots Near Boston.

Correspondence of News Review.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 21.—I have not forgotten my promise to write the Evening News Review a letter while away, particularly concerning the Young Men's Christian association jubilee convention at Boston. That I have not done so until now has been principally from lack of time. There were so many important things that I wanted to see or hear that I fully occupied my time with them. There was, however, a second reason.

There were gathered together 2200 delegates from all parts of the world, the best and the brightest of the association men were there, there was the most magnificent exhibit ever gotten together, covering all branches of Y. M. C. A. activity, and the meetings, the papers, the trying to take in and classify for future reference as much as possible of all that was seen and heard, produced such a composite picture in the mind that it would require too much time and space to, in any degree, cover it.

We left East Liverpool Monday morning, June 10, joined ourselves to the Ohio delegation at Cleveland, and left there on special train at 3 p.m. the same afternoon, arriving in Boston Tuesday noon. The journey was uneventful, except that it was most delightful, there being a constant visiting of delegates from one sleeper to another, a making and renewing of friendships and the good fellowship that always exists on such occasions.

Among the Ohio delegation was most of the state committee, the state secretaries, a good number of the local secretaries and many business men, friends of the association, many of them directors in the local associations. Quarters had been secured at the Adams house in Boston and most of the Ohio men stopped there. On Wednesday a very pleasant meeting of the Ohio delegation was held in the hotel parlors. A number of the wives of delegates accompanied their husbands and were present, and the occasion was a most pleasant one.

On Monday we went to Plymouth, and visited Plymouth Rock, and other points of interest there, and that evening started on our return voyage. We are now at Buffalo, taking in the Pan-American.

Of the convention itself I will not attempt to speak at any length. What impressed me first was that it was a business man's convention. The officers of the associations, used to prominence in local affairs, were here in the background, and such men as Cephas Brainard, James Stokes, Judge Spencer, and a hundred others, took prominent part.

The foreign delegates were also centers of attraction. One dressed in white, with long white silk ulster and a dozen yards of silk wound around his head in some mysterious way, a delegate from India, who had come 12,000 miles to attend the convention, was a noticeable figure. His name sounded like a college yell—I have Mr. Bulger's authority for this—so I do not attempt to write it. Mr. Williams, son of the founder of the association, was always persona grata to the convention, and they applauded him on every opportunity.

When he read a message from King Edward, addressed to the convention, the scene was indescribable. Everybody cheered and waved their handkerchiefs, and "God Save the King" was sung by the English delegates, many others joining with them. The first message from a crowned head was a long cablegram from Emperor William, of Germany. It also received an ovation. Booker T. Washington, the champion of the colored race, was as warmly received as any delegate who spoke, and his address, while not so scholarly as that of President Patton of Princeton, who preceded him, was eloquent and scholarly nevertheless. But I am only recording disjointed impressions which come up in my mind while I write.

The whole convention was replete with stirring addresses. Wonderful statements regarding the past, the present and the future of the Young Men's Christian association were so frequent that we were in a state of amazement continually. At least I was.

Considerable time and discussion was given to the work for boys, which has been quite prominent during the past year. As the work of the convention is formative rather than reformatory, the convicton has been growing in the minds of thinking men that, in the past, we have waited too long; that more attention should be paid to the younger boys, in an attempt to get a hold on them and form character in their youth. I do not make a speciality of prophecy, nevertheless I am convinced that this work will grow rapidly and become the most important branch of the association work in the not distant future.

Sunday meetings were never to be forgotten, especially the afternoon meeting, at which hundreds of men arose and asked that prayers be offered in their behalf. At the farewell meeting delegates from as many countries arose and repeated: "For one is our Master, even Christ, and all we are brethren," in 24 or 25 languages and dialects. No more impressive scene could be imagined than German and Frenchman, Swiss and Prussian, Spaniard and American, Chinese and Russian with all other nations standing upon this one platform and voicing this one sentiment. It brought vividly before me the Young Men's Christian association motto, John 17:21, "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they may also be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me."

Sincerely yours,
M. C. WRIGHT.

WORK DELAYED BECAUSE OF LACK OF PETITIONS.

Meeting of the Board of Commissioners Reveals the Cause of Inaction.

The board of sewer commissioners met last evening in the office of the Potters' Mining and Milling company, with the following members present: T. H. Arbuckle, William Cartwright, Joseph G. Lee, F. H. Croxall, H. A. McNicol.

Only one member of the special committee appointed by council some time ago to confer with the board was present. Mr. Nice has been ill for several days and Mr. Barlow did not appear. Mr. McLane was therefore compelled to represent the council alone.

The property owners on Chestnut, Pleasant, Fenton and Prospect streets have been in council night after night asking that something be done toward furnishing these thoroughfares with proper connections. The contract on Pleasant street has been let since the first of the year and work should have been commenced long ago.

It developed at the meeting that according to law the requests must come in the proper form to council signed by a majority of the property owners. This was followed out in but one instance, and that in the case of Chestnut street. It was, therefore, decided that the commissioners could do nothing until the ordinance was complied with. The sewerage of Chestnut street will be commenced at once.

WELL-KEPT SECRET

Marriage of Mr. Frank Crook And Mrs. Agnes Moore Just Announced.

The marriage of Mr. Frank Crook, one of the city's leading merchants, and Mrs. Agnes A. Moore, has just been announced.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Clark Crawford the evening of April 23, at the residence of L. M. Thomas in this city. So well was the fact concealed that not even the most intimate friends of the contracting parties were aware of it.

Mrs. Crook has been in Pittsburgh visiting relatives for several weeks, and returned to the city last evening. She was met by her husband and driven to their home on Fifth street.

The bride is a most estimable lady and well known in this city. The couple have the best wishes of a large circle of friends.

The News Review joins with them in offering congratulations, which, though a trifle tardy, are none the less sincere.

After a Fierce Struggle in Which a Hatchet And Revolver Were Used, the Dog Was Dispatched—Great Excitement in Green Lane.

A valuable fox terrier, the property of John Johnson, went mad this morning at the home of its owner in Green lane.

There is a large family of the Johnsons, and the smaller children were playing about in the yard when the dog came up the alley from the vicinity of the Burford pottery and ran through the yard snapping at every object on his way, while froth was streaming from his mouth and the little folks, noticing this, became terrified and ran into the alley. The dog made his way straight through the house and back to the kitchen, where Miss Cora Johnson was at work. He attacked her and she would doubtless have been bitten had it not been for the plucky defense made by the lady.

Miss Johnson succeeded in beating off the animal and finally got out of the room, locking the doors. At this juncture Robert Boyd, of the West End, made his appearance, and when told of the occurrence proceeded to make way with the dog. He procured a hatchet from his wagon and went into the kitchen, where a fierce encounter took place. While the gentleman was able to keep the maddened beast at bay it was impossible to get sufficiently near to kill it.

By this time Miss Johnson had recovered her presence of mind sufficiently to remember that there was a revolver in the house and hastened to get it. Armed with the gun Mr. Boyd again entered the house and opened fire on the dog, but the first shot failed to take effect. The animal ran into a bed room and crouched under the bed, where it continued to snap and growl in a threatening manner. It was impossible to get a shot at the beast from the front of the bed, and Mr. Boyd gathered up the mattress

By this time Miss Johnson had recovered her presence of mind sufficiently to remember that there was a revolver in the house and hastened to get it. Armed with the gun Mr. Boyd again entered the house and opened fire on the dog, but the first shot failed to take effect. The animal ran into a bed room and crouched under the bed, where it continued to snap and growl in a threatening manner. It was impossible to get a shot at the beast from the front of the bed, and Mr. Boyd gathered up the mattress and bed clothing with one hand while he handled the gun with the other. Two shots were fired into the dog's body, and he expired. When killed the animal was wedged in between the legs of the bed and the wall, and some difficulty was experienced in getting him out.

The dog had never before shown any symptoms of being mad, and was very docile.

SUNNY WOMEN.

Who has not known the woman whose disposition is described by that one word "sunny"? There's always a laugh lurking on her lips. Her cheeks are ever ready to dimple in smiles. Her household influence is as brightening and stimulating as the sunshine. Nothing can be crueler than to have this sunshine blotted out by disease. But this is a common cruelty. The young wife who was the sunshine of the home becomes its shadow. Every young wife should know the value of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in the protection and preservation of the health. It promotes regularity, dries the drains which enfeeble body and mind, and cures inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It nourishes the nervous system and gives to the body the balance and buoyancy of perfect health. It is a strictly temperance medicine.

...that your medicine cured me," writes Mrs. Maud Pearce, of Stoutsburg, Fairfield Co., Ohio. "I had suffered about twelve years from female weakness and I had almost given up, thinking there was no cure for me. Then I heard of Dr. Pierce's medicine and thought I would try it and can say that within twelve days of your 'Favorite Prescription' made me well. I am now able to do my own housework. I took about twelve bottles in all of Dr. Pierce's medicines. Took some of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' 'Favorite Prescription' and some of the 'Pleasant Pellets.'"

OUR LINE OF CUT GLASS IS LARGE

OFFER OF $500,000

For Philadelphia Transit Franchises Made by John Wanamaker.

NEWS OF THREE STATES.

Foch-Emery Bill to Be Tested in Court at New Castle, Pa.—Ex-Gov. Campbell to Live in New York—Injunction Against W. Va. Miners.

Philadelphia, June 22.—Following his offer to Mayor Ashbridge last week to pay to the city $2,500,000 for the street railway franchises granted to certain capitalists in this city by the city council, to which he received no reply, ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker last night sent a communication to Congressman Robert H. Foerderer, one of the capitalists to whom the franchises were granted, offering him a half million dollars for the franchises, in addition to giving the city the sum already offered. A few days ago Mr. Foerderer, in a newspaper interview, is alleged to have stated that Mr. Wanamaker's offer to the mayor was not sincere, and that it had a "string to it." Mr. Wanamaker, in his letter to Mr. Foerderer, denies the imputation.

Mr. Wanamaker, besides the above offer, said he would agree on the surface roads covered by the charters and the ordinances that 3-cent fares only shall be charged between the hours of 6 a. m. and 8 a. m. and 5 and 7 p. m.; and not over 5 cents for the other hours; and he would further agree that any time within 10 years the city of Philadelphia might resume the franchises upon the payment of the actual money expended and invested in the various enterprises covered by the charters and ordinances, with 6 per cent interest. He further said in part:

"I say again, as I did in my letter to the mayor, that it is not my desire to enter upon the business of railroading or to make any profit out of any municipal franchise. I merely desire the people to see how badly they have been wronged and the magnitude of the value of the property of which they have been despoiled. If you should accept the offer of this letter I will cheerfully put the franchises up to auction and give the city any sum bid for them in excess of that which I shall pay under this proposition."

"If the proposition I have made to you is not acceptable I should be glad to know what sum would tempt you and your associates to surrender the privileges you now own and which were obtained by methods so unusual and defiant of the public will as to have aroused the indignation of the people of the entire nation."

FOCH-EMERY LAWS IN COURT.

Lawrence County, Pa., Farmer Under-takes to Test Rights of Trolley Companies on His Land.

New Castle, Pa., June 22.—Judge Wallace has granted a preliminary injunction against the New Castle and Lowellville and the Mahoning Valley Street Railway companies, restraining them from laying their tracks across the farm of Fred Kincaid, of Mahoning township. The companies made no effort to reach an agreement with Kincaid, and he applied to the court for protection.

The companies rely on the provisions of the Foch and Emery bills, which give to electric railway companies certain rights of eminent domain, such as the railroads have long enjoyed. This will be the first time this question has been brought up.

The hearing is set for next Friday. Meantime the injunction practically puts a stop for the time being to work upon the line, which is to connect this city with Youngstown.

CAMPBELL TO QUIT OHIO.

Reported the Ex-Governor Is to Live in New York City.

Columbus, June 22.—A special from Hamilton, O., says that former Governor James E. Campbell is shipping his goods to New York city, preparing to become a resident there and a citizen of the Empire state. Though engaged in the practice of law in New York occasionally for some time he has always maintained a legal and actual residence at Hamilton, and often had declared that he never would leave his native state. This change marks the end of his notable career in Ohio, and it is probable he never again will give attention to public affairs.

STRIKERS ARE ENJOINED.

Jackson Issues an Injunction Against Mine Workers About Matewan.

Parkersburg, W. Va., June 22.—In the United States court last evening Judge John J. Jackson duplicated for the coal operators about Matewan, W. The injunction was issued against three lodges of the United Mine Workers and 82 miners, whose names are given, and others in coal field about Matewan, where the battle between the deputies and strikers occurred.

Cailles will surrender Monday, after which he is expected to assist in bringing in Malvar, who, in reality, is his superior officer.

BABY MISSING

Child Could Not Walk But It Disappeared Suddenly And Completely.

Chardon, O., June 22.—Willie Gray, a boy 16 months old, has disappeared from his home under such peculiar circumstances that the officials who are investigating the matter expect to turn up a tragedy.

The disappearance of the child was first reported to the police by neighbors. The boy disappeared last Monday. His mother, Cora Gray, an unmarried girl 21 years old, says she was sitting in the house and the boy was playing on the floor. He crawled out through an open door and she has never seen him since.

The child could not walk. The mother says she did not give the alarm because she thought the baby would come back. Cora Gray lives with her parents in a log house, near Burton. It is on the edge of a large swamp and about 80 rods from the Cuyahoga river. The officers are inclined to think that the baby found its death in the swamp or the river.

The sheriff, coroner and every available officer is working on the case.

BATH OF THE ORANGE.

The Fruit Needs Much Grooming Before It Is Ready For Market.

Fresh from the tree an orange is still very much alive, with the oil cells expanded and the mystery of growth not yet suspended. Cut off from the sap supply, a change takes place. The skin draws closer to the pulp and gives off moisture that would cause sweating if the fruit were packed at once. But first these dust stained travelers must have a bath.

By the bushel, if only this were the land of the good old bushel basket, the newcomers are dumped into a long, narrow tank of water at one end of which is a big wheel with a tire of soft bristles. The wheel revolves so that the lower edge works in connection with another set of brushes in a smaller tank below, and the oranges, after bobbing about in the big tank, pass between the wet brushes and come out bright and clean.

This washer is a neat machine and does away with the more primitive yet picturesque method of hand washing.

At some of the smaller packing houses may still be seen groups of women, sometimes white, sometimes brown skinned, each with a tub of water and brush, scrubbing busily away at the yellow piles that never seem to grow less till the last hour of the day.

After their bath the oranges are spread out in the sun to dry on long, slanting racks. At the lower end they roll off into boxes, to be carried away to the warehouse for their rest.

An orange needs a deal of grooming. It would seem, before it is ready for market. The washing was not enough. There must be a brushing too. And after the days of curing the oranges are fed into a hopper which drops them single file on to a belt that runs between revolving cylindrical brushes, this for a smooth, shiny look.—Los Angeles Herald.

Even with the need of planting flowers for the bees in the older portion of the country, however, the wax and honey industry pays well. There are twice as many honey eaters in the land as there were 20 years ago, and beekeeping methods are twice as skillful and economical. The invention of the honey extractor enables the same comb to be used over and over again without making the little bee waste her substance and the time of her one season of life in secreting wax. The improved hives prevent the freezing out in winter that used to be so fatal in the northern states, and the bee moth, with its repellent progeny, can also be routed by the keeper who knows.

The industry is one especially adapted to women. I know of a young lady in a section of country not particularly favorable who is paying her way through college on the proceeds of her apriary. She is fortunate enough to have mechanical talent, so that she can make her own hives, which is saving. Any intelligent woman in the country who is favorably situated can add materially to her income from the sale of bees, honey and wax. The price of beeswax is steadily rising, and it is becoming more scarce.

What should a woman do who wishes to go into beekeeping? First let her consider whether there is near by a sufficient market for her product; next whether transportation is not so expensive that it will eat up her profits; then, if she knows nothing of the business, let her get a reliable book on beekeeping. It and its advertising pages will tell her all that is necessary for her to know, and intelligence and perseverance will do the rest. Good luck to her!

UNEXPECTED REFORM.

The New York city board of aldermen is about the last body on earth to which those having even a passing acquaintance with it would look for reform. But the unexpected is always happening, and the aldermen of the metropolis are seriously considering a reform, which, if inaugurated, will be a blessing to millions. They propose to compel the street railway companies to run enough cars to accommodate their patrons. The rules to be laid down and enforced are these:

It shall be unlawful to carry more than five passengers in a cross seat and the space belonging thereto. It shall be unlawful for any person to enter such compartment and trespass upon the rights of previous occupants by standing in such narrow space. For violating the first section the conductor shall be fined $5 to $10 for each offense. For violating the second the passengers shall be fined from $2 to $5 for each offense.

The street railway companies, receiving their valuable franchises from the city, are subject to the direction of ordinances regulating their business, so far as the public is affected. The proposed ordinance is a perfectly just and proper one. The public has rights that should not be infringed. A man who pays a nickel for a ride in a street car is as much entitled to reasonable accommodation as if he had paid $2 for a seat in a Pullman car.

New York, though less progressive than hundreds of smaller cities, will set an example for the whole country, if she succeeds in enacting and enforcing the proposed regulations.

THE FILIPINOS' FOURTH.

The Fourth of July is to be celebrated in the Philippines islands, both by natives and Americans. The celebration will mean as much to the former as to the latter. Americans do not have to be told what the Glorious Fourth signifies. To the Filipinos the first Fourth of July of the twentieth century is to be birthday of liberty. It is officially announced that Judge Taft, president of the Philippine commission, is to be inaugurated as civil governor of the islands on the anniversary of American independence. This will be the initial step toward the establishment of civil government in the islands. It means a new order of things for a people that are just beginning to appreciate the sweets of liberty and the protection of the American flag.

ENFORCING OLD LAWS.

The ancient Pennsylvania Blue laws are to be enforced in Pittsburgh without fear or favor, according to notice served by the new recorder of that city. Those who have been clamoring for their retention on the statute books will now have a chance to see how eighteenth century statutes fit twentieth century conditions. A strict enforcement of the Pennsylvania laws would close drug stores, stop railway trains and street cars, stop all mills and prevent any sort of manual labor not a work of necessity, on Sunday. The Pittsburgh enforcement is not likely to go to that length, but if it should the fate of the Blue laws would be settled in short order.

Ex-Postmaster General Wanamaker, whose offer of $2,000,000 for street railway franchises was rejected by the mayor, who preferred to give them away, follows up his offer by tendering the holders of the franchises $500,000 for their surrender. His enemies call his offer "bluff." If they are, they are bluffs that should be called.

If the citizens of Minerva are able to raise $20,000 to secure new industries, it strikes us that those of East Liverpool might do something in the same line with fully as much ease if they would bend their energies to the task.

BIDS ARE ASKED

For Wabash Railway Work at Pittsburg, to Cost Millions.

Pittsburg, June 22.—Announcement will be made today by the Pittsburg officials of the Wabash railroad requesting proposals for the construction of the great cantilever bridge across the Monongahela river at Perry street and 10 miles of roadway between the city terminus and a point west of Bridgeville. Bids are to be received by Chief Engineer J. W. Patterson on July 8 at 2 p.m., and it is expected to award the contract within a few days thereafter. The proposals are not only for grading, but for all of the masonry of the in the first section of the Pittsburg, Carnegie & Western. The roadway to be contracted for will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000, while the bridge will cost $900,000.

Proposals for the foundation and masonry of the Monongahela bridge will be received at the Pittsburg offices of the Pittsburg, Carnegie & Western by Boller & Hodge, consulting bridge engineers. This contract will be large, but the greatest and most important portion of the bridge will be the superstructure. About 8,000 tons of steel will be required.

The surveying corps in the field for the Wabash extension between Pittsburg and the Ohio river have been called in, and they will make report this afternoon. The engineers expect to return and complete their detailed work in the field.

Gleanings Of a Day

In and About The Local Potteries.

The resolutions favoring an increase in the salary of the national officers of the N. B. of O. P. have brought out some very odd objections, particularly to a very great increase in the salary of Secretary T. J. Duffy. The most astounding objection is phrased thus: "It is not necessary to increase his salary much, because he is not married and has no one to keep but himself."

That must be an old English idea. It surely did not originate in this country where brains and ability are appreciated and modern trades unionists believe in recompensing their leaders.

Really the potters ought to be thankful that Secretary Duffy is not married and that he is free to give his undivided attention to this trade, just when it most needs his services, as an organizer and tactician.

We have confidence, at least in the younger element of the trade, that such old fogey arguments as mentioned above will never again rule in the pottery trade of this country. The Brotherhood has carried the pottery craft past such ancient tactics and there is no prospect of it taking any more backward steps. The trade was held back long enough. Onward is the watchword now—"Mack," in the Commoner and Glassworker.

The citizens of Minerva have raised $20,000, which will probably be of

SOUTH SIDE

LEGAL BATTLE MAY COME

As a Result of a Dispute Between Chester Council And Finley Brothers.

The street committee of council and Finley Bros. are engaged in a dispute which, according to an interested person's statement, is very likely to terminate in a legal battle.

Finley Bros. recently purchased a lot on Indiana avenue which was filled up several feet in order to make it level with the surrounding ground. In wet weather the water from the hillside above runs down to the lot adjoining it and forms a pond which, it is said, occasionally overflows into the cellar of a residence nearby.

The street committee are trying to decide whether Finley Bros. have obstructed a natural waterway and have consulted the solicitor about the matter. Finley Bros. have likewise consulted an attorney, and say they will give council permission to run a sewer pipe under the ground.

A Crowd of 200 Persons From Duquesne, Pa., at the Park Today.

The Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, of Duquesne, Pa., are enjoying themselves to the limit at the park today. The crowd is not large, there being only about 200 present, but every one seems bent on having the pleasantest time possible and most of them are succeeding. The rain this afternoon put a damper on the jollity, but the picnickers were pleased with the place.

MOTORMEN'S PICNIC

A Very Successful Affair, Though Rain Kept Down Attendance.

The motormen's picnic yesterday was a very successful affair, although the rain kept away perhaps more people than attended. Several thousand tickets had been sold, but only about 1,500 people were present. Most of those who purchased tickets put off going until evening and then were kept away by the weather.

COLLEGE MEN NEED FAITH.

Holy Ghost Graduates Addressed by Dr. Thomas J. Conaty—Medals Awarded For Scholarship.

Pittsburgh, June 22.—Amid the applause of thousands of admiring friends, the graduates of the Pittsburgh Catholic College of the Holy Ghost last night received diplomas from the hands of Bishop Phelan. The exercises of the twenty-third commencement of the institution were held in the Grand Opera house, and consisted of orations by the seniors and musical selections by the College Glee club and orchestra.

Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Conaty, doctor of sacred theology, of the Catholic university at Washington, was the principal speaker, and addressed the graduates on "The Catholic College Man in the Twentieth Century." In part Dr. Conaty said:

"The college man needed by the new century is a man with faith and hope in God and in his fellow man, as well as with a knowledge of classics and scientific learning. In him should be the hope which argues immortality, and the will which finds its perfection in obedience to the eternal laws. Herein is to be found the Christian gentleman, whose life is a blessing to his fellow men, because his character exemplifies his faith in God and his hope in immortality."

William H. Taft president of the Philippine commission is appointed civil governor and will exercise executive authority in all civil affairs in the government of the Philippines heretofore exercised in such affairs by the military governor.

New York, June 22.—The jury before which Thomas G. Barker, of Arlington, N. J., was tried for shooting with intent to kill the Rev. John Keller, of the same town, took one ballot and returned with a verdict of guilty.

Barker last night found himself once more an inmate of the county jail. He must remain there until $10,000 bail is furnished. Before him stands a possible seven years' imprisonment and a fine of as much as $2,000.

Mrs. Barker was not in the court room to hear the verdict. She was in another part of the court house and when told of the verdict sobbed bitterly. Mr. Keller was also absent and showed no emotion when told of the verdict. Barker had expected an acquittal. He based his hopes upon the strong plea of his counsel, when he dwelt upon the unwritten law that a man has a right to kill where the sanctity of his home is assailed. Whatever the effect of this line of pleading upon the jury, it was swept away by the cold charge of the court that "the story of the alleged outrage, or the outrage itself, if true, was no justification of the defendant's assault."

The court explained he had admitted evidence that Barker had been told of an alleged assault, not because it had anything to do with the case, but because it was for the jury to determine if the story had any tendency to do with making the defendant criminally irresponsible. If they believed the defendant was sane at the time of the shooting they must convict.

In his closing Prosecutor Erwin asked the jurors if the woman's course was the natural one. He said her story was improbable because Mrs. Barker would, in the natural course, have told her husband of the assault at once, and, failing that, would have made a confidant of a woman and not of another man.

The jury's only ballot was unanimous for guilty and a fine of the highest degree charged.

Mr. Keller, as soon as the trial was completed, issued a brief statement, in which he absolutely denied the truth of the allegations that have been made and published by Mrs. Barker.

Barker will probably be sentenced on Thursday next and then his counsel will file the papers in an appeal to the supreme court.

THE SCORE A TIE

WELLSBURG AND THE LOCALS GOT TOGETHER.

Met Under Difficulties—Six Innings Played And the Score 6 to 6.

The Wellsburg and East Liverpool baseball teams got together yesterday under great difficulties. Though they were unable to play at the West End grounds, the teams succeeded in getting through their second game at Rock Springs park. The rain of Thursday night rendered the West End grounds unfit for use, but it was not until after dinner that the decision was reached to go over to Rock Springs.

When the players finally did reach the grounds they found that the street railway employees had arranged for the use of the diamond, and for a time it was thought the game would have to be called off. However, the street car people agreed to give up the grounds, and after a long delay the contest started.

About two hundred spectators were present when the game was called. Several changes in the lineup of the home team were made from that of yesterday, Wallace playing first base and Rark shortstop. Their work, together with that of Davis at third, was splendid, and saved the team from defeat. Owing to darkness only six innings were played, the game resulting in a tie—6 to 6.

McShane and Millward composed the battery for the home team and Ferguson and Farrell were the Wellsburg battery. The grounds were in poor condition owing to the rain, and the players were somewhat handicapped as a consequence.

The Wellsburg aggregation left for their home on the evening train, and the game scheduled for today was therefore called off.

Mrs. Barker was not in the court room to hear the verdict. She was in another part of the court house and when told of the verdict sobbed bitterly. Mr. Keller was also absent and showed no emotion when told of the verdict. Barker had expected an acquittal. He based his hopes upon the strong plea of his counsel, when he dwelt upon the unwritten law that a man has a right to kill where the sanctity of his home is assailed. Whatever the effect of this line of pleading upon the jury, it was swept away by the cold charge of the court that "the story of the alleged outrage, or the outrage itself, if true, was no justification of the defendant's assault."

The court explained he had admitted evidence that Barker had been told of an alleged assault, not because he had anything to do with the case, but because it was for the jury to determine if the story had anything to do with making the defendant criminally irresponsible. If they believed the defendant was sane at the time of the shooting they must convict.

In his closing Prosecutor Erwin asked the jurors if the woman's course was the natural one. He said her story was improbable because Mrs. Barker would, in the natural course, have told her husband of the assault at once, and, failing that, would have made a confidant of a woman and not of another man.

The jury's only ballot was unanimous for guilty and a unit for the highest degree charged.

Mr. Keller, as soon as the trial was completed, issued a brief statement, in which he absolutely denied the truth of the allegations that have been made and published by Mrs. Barker.

Barker will probably be sentenced on Thursday next and then his counsel will file the papers in an appeal to the supreme court.

SCALDED BY STEAM

F. J. MONCRIEF, NIGHT WATCHMAN, BADLY BURNED.

Leaning Over an Escape Pipe When Steam Came on Suddenly.

F. J. Moncrief, who is employed as night fireman at the power house, was seriously burned by escaping steam at about 1 o'clock this morning. He was taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. Morris Baxter, near Rallison's Crossing, and Dr. R. J. Marshall was summoned. The wounds were dressed and the man made as comfortable as possible, but he still suffers considerably.

Mr. Moncrief was standing over an escape pipe when he was caught by the steam which came on suddenly. He was terribly burned about the groins and abdomen before he could get out of reach of the scalding vapor. His suffering was intense until the doctor arrived and dressed the wounds. He will probably be unable to work for some time.

RUSSIA ACTED HASTILY.

SECRETARY HAY TO SO REPRE-
SENT TO THAT GOVERNMENT.

Gage Authorized by the Cabinet to Issue Statement Defining Our Attitude.

Washington, June 22.—As a result
of the consideration of the entire matter
by the cabinet Secretary Hay will
soon make representations to the Russian government fully explaining
the attitude of this country and pointing
out that Russia has acted hastily
and under a misapprehension of the facts in her position of retaliation.

A statement was issued by the secretary of the treasury.

The statement said in part that on June 18, 1900, an importation of crude
oil from Russia, refined in England,
came to Rochester, N. Y. A collector
imposed a duty, as if it came from Russia, and the general appraisers of
New York approved. Action toward having consuls secure real origin of shipments followed. No country protested except Russia. Action was taken under the provisions of the Dingley act. The statement further
said in part:

Upon this statement of facts the officials
are at a great loss to understand how Russia can be held responsible for the government's action and inaugurate a system of
discriminating duties against products of the United States in consequence. It is hoped that Secretary Hay will be able to present the facts so that Russia will respond to her action and will show that she is not to be held responsible for this country in tariff matters. The cabinet found
the administration has a strong case and believes that if Russia is entirely friendly
she will be made to see that her action
in this case has not been such as to call forth the most friendly feeling to this country.

was the son of Alfred Heslop, a retired paint contractor living in John-

two friends, William Aker, of Philadelphia, and John Bergman, of John-town. The latter is a cadet on the Saratoga, and is off on shore leave.

Philadelphia, June 22.—Hugh Jennings signed a contract to play ball

club for the balance of the season.
His release was purchased from Brooklyn. Both the Baltimore and Athletic teams of the American league claimed Jennings' services.

Has Gen. Botha Surrendered?
London, June 22.—The Sun again printed the sensational announcement
which it made June 18, that General Botha, the Boer commander, after the receipt of President Kruger's decision not to concede anything, decided to ignore the former president of the Transvaal and surrender.

Gibbons Started For Florence.
Rome, June 22.—Cardinal Gibbons started for Florence for a stay of a week. At the railway station he bade farewell to the procurator general and to the brothers of St. Sulpice, whose guest he was while here.

Hold for Gold Taken by Boers.

est has been aroused by the success of the Drei-Fontein case in the appeal court, in which Lloyds is held for the £30,000 which the Transvaal government commandeered from a train.

Split in English Liberal Party.
London, June 22.—The principal topic discussed by the afternoon papers here yesterday was the split in the Liberal party. The air is thick with rumors of expulsions and resignations.

Four Men Were Killed.

Kalama Wash., June 22.—An explosion of dynamite occurred here on the line of the Washington and Oregon railroad, in which four men were killed.

York State Bankers' association, in thony Hiley Hoskins is dead. He was born in 1828.

Gen. Byron Laflin Dead.

HATS AND THE COIFFURE.

Low Hairdressing and the Con-
sequent Abandoned Collar.

The low coiffure has become an accomplished fact with the Parisienne,
although it is difficult to realize that
she has abandoned the knot gathered
high on the head, which is so chic and
so well becomes the majority of women.

But so it is. For day wear she adopts
a middle course, the hair mostly gathered
into a knot of small curls and puffs, not lying too close to the back of the head, and in the evening, at
theater and restaurant, the hair lies in
a heavy coil or loop on the nape of the neck.

This, of course, means the abandonment of the collar, and all the summer
dresses, excepting, of course, the tailor
costume, are being made with no collars at all except a transparent piece
of lace, the top of the chemisette being drawn up close to the throat with a threading of ribbon. Such a mode is eminently becoming to the French-
woman, who is usually inclined to be
high shouldered and short necked, but
how will it fare with the American,
with her longer and more swanlike
throat? However, the flat seems to be that the hair is to be dressed low
and the collar must go.

In pretty printed muslins and guazes
Marie Antoinette styles find latest favor,
and with them go those flat plateau hats wreathed with flowers, with shepherdess bows falling on to the hair

NEW HATS FOR THE NEW COIFFURE

the extreme edge of the brim with a
fringe of flowers, a notable example
being a flat blue straw, wide brimmed
and bent down back and front, with a
fringe of the "wee modest crimson
tipped" daisy round the edge, a small
wreath of the same round the slight
elevation, which does duty as crown
on these plateaus and a bow of black ribbon, with long ends falling behind.

The three cornered directoire shape
also prevails, with no trimming save a large chon in the center of the front
and an enormous ostrich plume falling
over one side.

Gathered chiffon forms the foundation of many toques which are in the tricorn shape, rather small, and drapes
of lace compose others.

In the more practical hats come those
of the clever "shirt waist" and "tailor-
ed" varieties, the smart "runabouts"
and "short back" sailors.

The Summer Curtains.

The use of lace curtains in summer
seems to be a question of locality, remarks The Household. In large cities
curtains are usually taken down in
May and are not put up again until October.
Scorching sunlight is very injurious to fine lace. With the general use of screens curtains at the windows
are not a summer necessity, and many
object to them on the ground that they obstruct the free passage of air. This
is more especially the case in cities,
where fresh air is at a premium. There
are cool suburban places where one
may indulge one's fancy for window
draperies. Curtains of muslin or some of the newer sorts of dainty scrims,
known by a number of names, answer
the decorative purpose of lace and at
the same time look more harmonious
with simple summer arrangements.

Just How to Do It.

The best way to chop an onion when you want a very little is to simply peel it down, take off a slice, cut it across
one way, then the other way, and it comes off in little squares. In this way
the onion is chopped without soiling a board or chopper, says Good Housekeeping.

Fashion's Echoes.

Demidecolletage and elbow sleeves
are the smart things for day gowns.

There is no doubt that low styles of
coiffure are to be fashionable.

Some of the prettiest sleeves show
the undersleeve effect only at the el-
bows, where the sleeve is slashed and
filled in with a lace or mousseline puff.

Traveling dust coats of black taffeta
have a place in the fashionable summer outfit. The prettiest are tucked nearly all over.

The empire style is particularly attractive in lingerie.

The new millinery would seem to be perfectly flat and round, keeping its
place on the head by bandeaux.

Belts and sashes of ribbon will play
an all important part this season.

No garment surpasses the tasteful
shirt waist.

Fancy boas are one of the season's
fads and show great variety.

The trim little pique stock solves the
puzzling question of neckwear for the
shirt waist in a most happy way. The stock part is made of rather heavy
white pique, and the small ties match
or harmonize with the waist.

Yes," answered the complacent man
brute; "my friends told me so at the time, but I didn't realize it until after
we were married."—Kansas City Star.

TIRED OF THE TRIP

SO HE GOT OUT OF THE BALLOON
BY THE JUMP ROUTE.

And Then When He Told the Eng-
lishmen He Met What He Had Done
They Considerately Carried Him
Off to an Insane Asylum.

"I went up in a balloon once, and I
never want to make such a trip again,"
said Colonel A. Noel Blakeman. "My experience as an aeronaut was in London," he continued, "and it would never have occurred but for a friend I chanced to meet there. He was going to make an ascent, and he persuaded me to accompany him.

"The balloon was a feature of some
big exhibition, and every day it was
inflated and made an ascent, with four
or five passengers, in charge of an experienced aeronaut. There were about
five in the party the day I took the trip.
We got into the basket, which was
boxed in quite high, then let the rope
go, and we shot up about 3,000 feet. It
was interesting to look down on the world and hear the noises of London
streets coming from so far below. The balloon sailed along smoothly, and we
drifted for about eight miles.

"It was when we tried to descend
that the trouble began. The method
was to throw out anchors as the balloon settled toward the earth. The aeronaut said that when one of these
anchors caught firmly he would haul
the balloon down to the tree in which
the anchor was expected to become fastened. This would be done by winding in the rope on a winch in the car.
We would be expected to climb out of
the balloon into the tree, he said, and
he would then take hold of the valve
rope and, standing a safe distance away,
open the valve, let the gas escape, and
the big affair would collapse and sink.
He informed us that we must get clear of the sinking folds, as they would come down fast, and if they caught and covered us we would be in an atmosphere of most poisonous gases.

"All this was very interesting, but
we did not seem to be making very
much progress toward the point where
we would have to look out for the descending folds of the collapsing balloon. The anchors caught in a whole lot of trees, but they did not hold. One
would get tangled in a tree, and then
the balloon would sway far over, tilting the basket in which we were until
it seemed that we would be spilled out.
Then the anchor would break loose,
and we would shoot up again.

"I became very tired of this and told
the aeronaut that I thought it was time to bring the voyage to a conclusion. He told me if I did not like it I could jump out.
At first I thought he was simply resentful of my remark, but he said he meant what he said.

"When the car tilts over again, you
climb out on the edge," he said, "and let
go. It will probably be a plowed field
underneath us, and you won't get hurt."

"Well, I did as he suggested. When
the anchor caught again, I climbed out
and hung to the edge of the car. When I saw that the car was as low as it was likely to get, I let go. I dropped about 12 feet, and, as the expected, a plowed
field was below us.

"As soon as I dropped out the balloon, relieved of my weight, shot up in the air again and soared off. I walked to the nearest road and continued along
it until I came to an inn.

"I asked the landlord how far it was to London, and he told me it was eight miles. I ordered a carriage to take me
there, and while I was waiting the landlord asked me where I had come
from.

"I took him to the door of the inn,
and, pointing to the balloon, which was
then sailing along about a quarter of a mile above the ground, I said, 'I jumped
out of that.'

"The man looked at me in alarm
fashion, and after I had returned to the
sitting room I noticed that several people
peered through the window at me.

"Finally my four wheeler was ready,
and I set off for London. After we had driven along for half an hour or so the coachman suddenly turned the horse in
through a gate, and we drove into a big courtyard. I yelled to him and asked him what he meant, that I wanted to go straight to London, but he paid no
attention and slowly circled the court.
When he stopped on the other side, a
man wearing glasses stuck his head in
the carriage, scrutinizing me closely,
pulled back, said something to the
coachman, and we drove on to London.

"Finally we reached my lodgings,
and when we did so the coachman
jumped off the box, ran up the steps
and as soon as his knock was answered
asked if Mr. Blakeman lived there.
The maid was just answering that I
did when I reached the top of the steps
and collared the fellow.

"What was that place you drove me
into on our way to London?" I asked him.

"It was a hinsane asylum, sir," he replied.
"When you said you had jumped
out of that balloon, we thought you were crazy and maybe you was a escaped patient from the asylum."—Washington Post.

Realized His Own Madness.

"Now you are tired of me and abuse
me," sobbed the young wife whose husband refused to hire another maid to take care of her pet dog. "Yes," she
continued, "not two years ago you
were just crazy to marry me."

"Yes," answered the complacent man
brute; "my friends told me so at the
time, but I didn't realize it until after
we were married."—Kansas City Star.

sequent Abandoned Collar.

The low coiffure has become an accomplished fact with the Parisienne,
although it is difficult to realize that
she has abandoned the knot gathered
high on the head, which is so chic and
so well becomes the majority of wom-
ankind.

But so it is. For day wear she adopts
a middle course, the hair mostly gathered into a knot of small curls and
puffs, not lying too close to the back
of the head, and in the evening, at
theater and restaurant, the hair lies in
a heavy coil or loop on the nape of the
neck.

This, of course, means the abandonment of the collar, and all the summer
dresses, excepting, of course, the tailor
costume, are being made with no col-
lars at all except a transparent piece
of lace, the top of the chemisette being
drawn up close to the throat with a threading of ribbon. Such a mode is eminently becoming to the French-
woman, who is usually inclined to be
high shouldered and short necked, but
how will it fare with the American,
with her longer and more swanlike
throat? However, the fact seems to be that the hair is to be dressed low
and the collar must go.

In pretty printed muslins and gauzes
Marie Antoinette styles find latest favor, and with them go those flat plateau hats wreathed with flowers, with
shepherdess bows falling on to the hair

the extreme edge of the brim with a
fringe of flowers, a notable example
being a flat blue straw, wide brimmed
and bent down back and front, with a
fringe of the "wee modest crimson
tipped" daisy round the edge, a small
wreath of the same round the slight elevation, which does duty as crown on these plateaus, and a bow of black ribbon, with long ends falling behind.

The three cornered directoire shape
also prevails, with no trimming save a large chou in the center of the front
over one side.

Gathered chiffon forms the foundation of many toques which are in the tricorne shape, rather small, and draperies of lace compose others.

In the more practical hats come those
of the clever "shirt waist" and "tailor-
ed" varieties, the smart "runabouts"
and "short back" sailors.

The Summer Curtains.

The use of lace curtains in summer
seems to be a question of locality, remarks The Household. In large cities
curtains are usually taken down in May and are not put up again until October. Scorching sunlight is very injurious to fine lace. With the general use of screen curtains at the windows
are not a summer necessity, and many
object to them on the ground that they
obstruct the free passage of air. This
is more especially the case in cities,
where fresh air is at a premium. There
are cool suburban places where one
may indulge one's fancy for window
draperies. Curtains of muslin or some of the newer sorts of dainty scrim,
known by a number of names, answer
the decorative purpose of lace and at
the same time look more harmonious
with simple summer arrangements.

Just How to Do It.

The best way to chop an onion when
you want a very little is to simply peel
it down, take off a slice, cut it across one way, then the other way, and let it come off in little squares. In this way
the onion is chopped without soiling a
board or chopper, says Good House-
keeping.

Fashion's Echoes.

Demidecolletage and elbow sleeves
are the smart things for day gowns.
There is no doubt that low styles of
coiffure are to be fashionable.
Some of the prettiest sleeves show
the undersleeve effect only at the el-
bows, where the sleeve is slashed and
filled in with a lace or mousseline puff.
Traveling dust coats of black taffeta
have a place in the fashionable summer outfit. The prettiest are tucked
nearly all over.

The empire style is particularly attractive in lingerie.

The new millinery would seem to be
perfectly flat and round, keeping its
place on the head by bandeaux.

Belts and sashes of ribbon will play
an all important part this season.

No garment surpasses the tasteful
shirt waist.

Fancy boas are one of the season's
fads and show great variety.

The trim little pique stock solves the
puzzling question of neckwear for the
stock part is made of rather heavy
white pique, and the small ties match
or harmonize with the waist.

Faint, delicate perfumes are preferred this year.

SO HE GOT OUT OF THE BALLOON
BY THE JUMP ROUTE.

And Then When He Told the Eng-
lishmen He Met What He Had Done
They Considerately Carried Him
Off to an Insane Asylum.

"I went up in a balloon once, and I
said Colonel A. Noel Blakeman. "My experience as an aeronaut was in London," he continued, "and it would never have occurred but for a friend I chanced to meet there. He was going to make an ascent, and he persuaded
me to accompany him.

"The balloon was a feature of some
big exhibition, and every day it was
inflated and made an ascent, with four
or five passengers, in charge of an experienced aeronaut. There were about
five in the party the day I took the trip.
We got into the basket, which was
boxed in quite high, then let the rope
go, and we shot up about 3,000 feet. It
was interesting to look down on the world and hear the noises of London
streets coming from so far below. The
balloon sailed along smoothly, and we
drifted for about eight miles.

"It was when we tried to descend
that the trouble began. The method
was to throw out anchors as the balloon settled toward the earth. The
aeronaut said that when one of these
anchors caught firmly he would haul
the balloon down to the tree in which
the anchor was expected to become
fastened. This would be done by winding in the rope on a winch in the car.
We would be expected to climb out of
the balloon into the tree, he said, and he would then take hold of the valve
rope and, standing a safe distance
away, open the valve, let the gas escape, and the big affair would collapse
and sink. He informed us that we must get clear of the sinking folds, as
they would come down fast, and if
they caught and covered us we would
be in an atmosphere of most poisonous
gas.

"All this was very interesting, but
much progress toward the point where
we would have to look out for the de-
scending folds of the collapsing balloon. The anchors caught in a whole
lot of trees, but they did not hold. One would get tangled in a tree, and then the balloon would sway far over, tilt-
ing the basket in which we were until
it seemed that we would be spilled out.
Then the anchor would break loose,
and we would shoot up again.

"I became very tired of this and told
the aeronaut that I thought it was time
to bring the voyage to a conclusion.
He told me if I did not like it I could jump out. At first I thought he was simply resentful of my remark, but he said he meant what he said.

"'When the car tilts over again, you
climb out on the edge,' he said, 'and let
go. It will probably be a plowed field
underneath us, and you won't get hurt.'

"Well, I did as he suggested. When
and hung to the edge of the car. When
I saw that the car was as low as it was likely to get, I let go. I dropped about 12 feet, and, as he expected, a plowed
field was below us.

"As soon as I dropped out the balloon, relieved of my weight, shot up in the air again and soared off. I walked
to the nearest road and continued along
it until I came to an inn.

"I asked the landlord how far it was to London, and he told me it was eight
miles. I ordered a carriage to take me
there, and while I was waiting the
landlord asked me where I had come
from.

"I took him to the door of the inn,
and, pointing to the balloon, which was
then sailing along about a quarter of a
mile above the ground, I said, 'I jumped
out of that.'

"The man looked at me in alarmed
fashion, and after I had returned to the sitting room I noticed that several people peered through the window at me.

"Finally my four wheeler was ready,
and I set off for London. After we had
driven along for half an hour or so the
coachman suddenly turned the horse in
through a gate, and we drove into a big
courtyard. I yelled to him and asked
him what he meant, that I wanted to
go straight to London, but he paid no
attention and slowly circled the court.
When he stopped on the other side, a
man wearing glasses stuck his head in
the carriage, scrutinizing me closely,
pulled back, said something to the
coachman, and we drove on to London.

"Finally we reached my lodgings
and when we did so the coachman
jumped off the box, ran up the steps
and as soon as his knock was answered
asked if Mr. Blakeman lived there.
The maid was just answering that I
did when I reached the top of the steps
and collared the fellow.

"'What was that place you drove me
into on our way to London?' I asked
him.

"'It was a binsane basylum, sir,' he replied. 'When you said you had jumped out of that balloon, we thought you
was crazy and maybe you was a escaped patient from the basylum!'

Realized His Own Madness.

"Now you are tired of me and abuse
me," sobbed the young wife whose husband refused to hire another maid to take care of her pet dog. "Yet," she
continued, "not two years ago you
were just crazy to marry me."

brute; "my friends told me so at the
time, but I didn't realize it until after
we were married."—Kansas City Star.

SPRINKLING WAGONS.

The Modern Ones a Big Improvement
on the Old Style.

The modern sprinkling wagon is very different from the old timer. The chief improvement is in the spray head, which enables the driver to control the flow of water much better than the old style. Thus, whether it is a dirt or a macadam road or a stone paved or asphalted street, there can be supplied from the modern street sprinkler just the amount of water required to lay the dust in it without waste.

The spray head on each side has its own valve rod running to the driver's seat, with a step there for the foot. The driver can operate both heads at once, or he can run only one head. He can shut off one or open either one at pleasure. With this sort of wagon the expert driver leaves behind him dry crosswalks with perfectly defined limits, and when he comes to a carriage or a street car upon which he doesn't want to throw water he shuts off the flow on that side and keeps the other going. Sprinkling wagons are made in various sizes, ranging from 150 gallons to 1,000 gallons capacity. There are 20 sprinkling wagons sold in this country
nowadays where there were one sold only a few years ago. This great increase in their use is due in large measure to sanitary reasons, to the great extension of good roads and to the great desire for comfort.

Sprinkling wagons are used nowadays commonly in many smaller towns and villages where they were never thought of some years ago. And American sprinkling wagons are now found all over the world wherever sprinkling wagons are used.

They are exported to Australia, Cuba,
Porto Rico, South America, South Africa and Europe. The modern sprinkling wagon that the traveler chances to see in Paris or Berlin or Hamburg came very likely from the same factory
as the one he saw here before he left home going through his own home street.—New York Sun.

RUSSIA ACTED HASTILY.

SECRETARY HAY TO SO REP-
SENT TO THAT GOVERNMENT.

sue Statement Defining Our Attitude.

Washington, June 22.—As a result
of the consideration of the entire matter
by the cabinet Secretary Hay will
soon make representations to the Russian government fully explaining
the attitude of this country and pointing
out that Russia has acted hastily
and under a misapprehension of the
facts in her position of retaliation.

A statement was issued by the secretary of the treasury.

The statement said in part that on June 18, 1900, an importation of crude
oil from Russia, refined in England,
came to Rochester, N. Y. A collector
imposed a duty, as if it came from Russia, and the general appraisers of
New York approved. Action toward having customs secure real origin of shipments followed. No country protested except Russia. Action was taken under the provisions of the Dingley act. The statement further
said in part:

Upon this statement of facts the officials
are at a great loss to understand how Russia can feel aggrieved at the government's action and inaugurate a system of advertising war against products of the United States in Russia. It is hoped that Secretary Hay will be able to present the facts so that Russia will re-
scind her action and will show that she is
not seeking to be unjust to this country
in tariff matters. The cabinet feels that
the administration has a strong case and
believes that if Russia is entirely free
she will be made to see that her action
forth the most friendly feeling in this country.

SEVENTEEN DEATHS

May be Awful Record of Explosions of Fourth of July Fireworks.

NUMBER OF PERSONS HURT.

Apartments Above Stores at Paterson, N. J., Became Ablaze—Some Who Escaped Death Rescued, or Had to Jump.

New York, June 22.—Seventeen people are believed to have been killed and a number injured as the result of a fire following an explosion among a quantity of fireworks in the store of Abraham M. Rittenburg at Paterson, N. J. The store was on the ground floor of a tenement building. The cause of the explosion is not known and the property loss will not exceed $35,000.

The Injured:

Nicholas Hilmann, cut on head.

Fireman Edward Singsland, injured by falling wall.

Mr. and Mrs. John McGlone, burned about face and bodies.

A number of people received minor injuries, but went to their homes.

So great was the force of the explosion that a boy playing in the street half a block away was lifted from his feet and hurled against an iron fence. One of his legs was broken.

Some of the occupants of the rooms dropped from the windows and were bruised, others hung from the windows until the firemen came and 20 persons were taken down in this way through the fire and smoke by the firemen, while others dropped into life nets.

Daniel Dooley saw the two Rittenberg children in the rear room and rescued one, but could not get the other. He was badly scorched in rescuing the first child.

The whole upper part of the building sagged outward and fell and Captain Allen and two of his men were buried under the blazing debris. One of the men is badly hurt.

Rittenberg will probably be arrested pending an investigation.

The bodies taken out thus far are almost unrecognizable and are burned and torn by the fire and the collapse of the timbers of the building.

The Bodies Found:
Mrs. Lucinda Adamson.

Mrs. Charles Williams, burned while trying to rescue husband.

Charles Williams, helpless cripple, unable to leave bed.

Harold Rittenberg, 10 months, child of the keeper of the fireworks store.

THROWN OUT OF BALLOON.

Man Struck Telegraph Wires and Sustained Few Cuts.

Chicago, June 22.—George R. Lawrence, a photographer, who attempted to take a bird's-eye view of the stock yards from a balloon, was thrown from his car after it had risen about 50 feet. The accident was caused by the breaking of a cross bar.

Lawrence struck a web of telegraph wires and was not injured beyond a few cuts.

The balloon continued its upward flight and soon disappeared.

MRS. M'KINLEY'S CONDITION

CONSIDERED FAVORABLE.

Washington, June 22.—Reports regarding Mrs. McKinley's condition continued of a favorable nature. Confidence is expressed that she will be able to be removed to Canton early in July.

Sympathy Over Pingree's Death.

London, June 22.—The North German Lloyd steamer Koenigen Louise will not sail this week, so the body of Hazen S. Pingree, the former governor of Michigan, who died here on Tuesday, will be taken to the United States on the Red Star line steamer Zealand, sailing Sunday at noon from Southampton for New York. There will be no religious service here. Many Americans have called on Mr. Pingree's son or left their cards at his residence.

Enlisted Men Appointed Officers.

Washington, June 22.—The president appointed 68 enlisted men of the army to be second lieutenants, thus providing for all the enlisted men, regulars and volunteers, found qualified for appointment at the recent examination.

New York June 22.—The grand jury indicted Police Captain John D. Herlihy who was in charge of the Elder street station during a recent anti-vise crusade for neglect of duty.

DRESS AND FASHION

PICTURESQUENESS, GRACE AND INDIVIDUALITY RULE.

The Princess Gown Again in Favor.
Skirts Mold the Hips and Swirl Out at the Feet—The Deceptive Simplicity of Cottons and Muslins.

The whole trend of dress is toward the picturesque. Flowered silks, graceful fichus, elbow ruffles and picture hats satisfy the artist's eye when worn by the right person and in the right manner.

Skirts are either immaculately cut, molded to the hips and swirling out at the feet or fully gathered (for thin materials), with a mere hint of paniers on the hips.

Bodices are pouched and pulled down to below the waist line in front, giving a graceful length to the figure.

Very large and much trimmed hats are worn, but the pendulum of the

toque has swung backward again, as far as the best milliners are concerned, to the smaller, neater toque of yore, molded a little on one side of the head. There is a tendency on the whole toward a choice of what is becoming and characteristic in dress rather than the merely smart and fashionable.

Though the heavier makes of dresses have become severely plain and tight fitting skirts, the more airy and flimsy fabrics will be gathered and fulled into the waistband and sometimes treated to quaint flounces. The dress depicted herewith in white and blue flowered foulard is cut with four flounces, the top one being in one with the bodice, fitting the waist like a corset by means of narrow plait. Frills of azure muslin are gathered around the lace yoke, and a blue velvet ribbon is drawn up into a large bow in front.

From all indications this will be a "costume" season. That is to say, dresses for outdoor wear will not require any covering, such as coats or jackets, or mantles. In a word, to use the term which expressed so much in our grandmothers' mouths, we can "go out in our figures."

It promises to be a great year for cotton frocks, batistes, muslins and other simple fabrics which require that studied simplicity in making up which is the most costly of all and which is admired till the little bill presented moves admiration that way no more.

The bolero in its simple form has been perhaps a little overdone, but its variations are as popular as ever, and one of the newest, the "stole," is shown in the cut, together with a short jacket of original aspect.

The princess model is shown in great variety, and the fashion is certainly becoming to a graceful figure.

Very attractive are the muslin gowns with daintily flowered grounds and

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 1901.

Little Harold Means, of the East End, Dies Under Sad Conditions.

SEVERE SURGICAL OPERATION

Was Necessary, But the Little Fellow Died As It Was Finished.

HAD TAKEN AN ANAESTHETIC

The Child Was Suffering From a Tumor on the Brain And the Operation Was Difficult And Delicate. Parents Prostrated.

Harold, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Means, of St. George street, died while undergoing a surgical operation at about noon yesterday. The operation had just been completed when the little one succumbed to the effects of the anaesthetic and the shock and ceased to breathe. The operation was a very delicate one, and is said to be as difficult as any with which surgeons have to deal.

The tumor was a fungus growth on the meningeal covering the brain about an inch above the left ear. It had absorbed the skull bone clear through at this point, forming a very small opening through which the discharge passed. It was necessary to remove a piece of skull about the size of a silver dollar and also the meningeal covering on which the growth was found. The tissue of the brain was not disturbed. It was thought the operation had been successfully completed when the child suddenly gave a slight stir and all was over. Drs. Hobbs, Bailey and Marshall, who performed the operation, worked with the boy for nearly half an hour in an attempt to revive him, but their efforts were without success.

Drs. Hobbs and Bailey had started to perform the operation about three weeks ago, but after examining the skull found that it would be more delicate than they had expected and consequently it was postponed until yesterday, when Dr. Marshall was called to assist them. The fungus growth had increased in size greatly since the physicians had examined it, and the only possible hope for the child's life lay in the operation.

The boy was playing in the yard when the physicians arrived and when called to the house begged for the doctors not to chloroform him. The anaesthetic was administered and he was placed on the table at about 11 o'clock. The operation consumed about half an hour's time. Mr. Means remained in the room with the physicians.

Mrs. Means has been almost distraught with grief since the result was made known to her, and it is feared that she may suffer a nervous collapse.

The affair is one of the saddest that ever occurred in the East End, and the family have the sympathy of the entire community.

The funeral will take place at the home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. N. M. Crowe officiating.

LOOKS DISCOURAGING

FOURTH OF JULY WILL PASS UN-OBSERVED IN THIS CITY.

Nothing Done As Yet to Arrange for a Celebration—Enthusiasm Lacking.

It is quite apparent that East Liverpool will have no Fourth of July celebration this year. As yet there has been no move made in that direction, and although Mayor Davidson has done everything possible to arouse public interest in an effort to properly commemorate the event, he has thus far been unable to accomplish anything.

The only explanation that is offered for the indifference shown by the citizens of East Liverpool is the fact that a circus is coming to town. The claim was made more than a week ago by a number of business men, who were interviewed by a reporter, that the coming of the elephant had so absorbed the minds of the citizens that the matter of a Fourth of July celebration had come to be regarded as a secondary consideration. Their claim seems to be the only logical explanation of the situation, however absurd it may appear. Aside from the usual doings of the small boy there will likely be no indication of the observance of one of the most important of natal days.

Mayor Davidson says he does not propose to do anything further unless he is given more encouragement than he has received thus far. He has been agitating the holding of a public meeting, but nobody seems disposed to assist him in getting the matter started. The time is so near at hand that unless immediate action is taken there will be little use in attempting to do anything, and if the celebration as proposed by the mayor cannot be creditably conducted it would be far better not to make the attempt.

Many of the merchants have expressed their willingness to lend their assistance in any way they can, but what is lacking is a man capable to take the matter in hand and see to it that nothing is overlooked in making the undertaking a success.

NEARLY KILLED BOY

LIGHTNING STRUCK A CHIMNEY AND IT FELL ON HIM.

Little Edward Franklin the Victim of a Singular Accident, Will Probably Live.

During the heavy storm this afternoon lightning struck the chimney on the house of Martin Bower, Jackson street, causing a portion of it to fall. Edward, the 10-year-old son of Thomas Franklin, was running past at the time and a piece of the falling chimney struck him on the head. He was rendered unconscious, but under the efforts of two doctors soon regained his senses and will probably live. His skull was not fractured. His home is at the corner of Seventh and Jackson streets and he is 10 years old.

The chimney is of terra cotta. In its descent it struck the limbs of a tree, probably saving the boy's life. The house was not otherwise damaged.

Sensational Story Told By a Harrisburg Constable Who Arrested a Pennsylvania Couple at an East Liverpool Hotel.

A Harrisburg, Pa., constable named Johnson caused somewhat of a sensation at the Thompson house yesterday by placing two guests of that hotel under arrest and taking them from the city. The prisoners, Mrs. May McCormick, of Harrisburg, and H. R. Mink, of Pittsburgh, were located by the officer after a search of several days, which was finally successful.

According to the story told by the constable to Chief Thompson, the woman in the case was married two weeks ago at Harrisburg. She and her husband arrived at Pittsburgh last Monday morning and were on their way to Chicago. Just as McCormick was buying tickets at the union depot his wife met another man named Slusser, whom she had formerly been acquainted with, and before the husband was aware of what was taking place, the woman left with Slusser.

McCormick got track of the couple, as did also the wife of the man who was with Mrs. McCormick. Mink, who is said to be a friend of Slusser, came to his rescue just as Mrs. Slusser was about to have her husband arrested. Mrs. McCormick was then in dilemma, and as a last resort she agreed to leave with Mink. The two boarded a train and arrived in this city some time Monday.

How the constable learned that they were in East Liverpool is not known. He reached here soon after their arrival with a warrant for Mrs. McCormick, but was unable to locate her. Thursday afternoon he went to the postoffice and inquired whether or not Mrs. McCormick had been getting mail there. The mail was not known but the officer learned that letters for May Bryan had been received at the office.

Thursday evening the constable stationed himself at the office and some time later the woman called there. Following her the constable learned that she was stopping at the Thompson house with Mink, and the two, it is alleged, were registered as man and wife. Securing the services of Chief Thompson Constable Johnson went to the hotel and placed Mrs. McCormick under arrest. Mink agreed to accompany the officer to Pittsburgh without a warrant, though he expected to be arrested on reaching that city. The party left yesterday morning.

Previous to having obtained his information at the postoffice concerning the woman, the constable, in company with Officer Mahoney, visited a number of dry goods stores in the city. It was learned that a woman dressed in white, with long white silk ulster and a dozen yards of silk wound around his head in some mysterious way, a delegate from India, who had come 12,000 miles to attend the convention, was a noticeable figure. His name sounded like a college yell—I have Mr. Bulger's authority for this—so I do not attempt to write it. Mr. Williams, son of the founder of the association, was always persona grata to the convention, and they applauded him on every opportunity.

When he read a message from King Edward, addressed to the convention, the scene was indescribable. Everybody cheered and waved their handkerchiefs, and "God Save the King" was sung by the English delegates, many others joining with them. The first message from a crowned head was a long cablegram from Emperor William, of Germany. It also received an ovation. Booker T. Washington, the champion of the colored race, was as warmly received as any delegate who spoke, and his address, while not so scholarly as that of President Patton of Princeton, who preceded him, was eloquent and scholarly nevertheless. But I am only recording disjointed impressions which come up in my mind while I write.

The whole convention was replete with stirring addresses. Wonderful statements regarding the past, the

Correspondence of News Review.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 21.—I have not forgotten my promise to write the Evening News Review a letter while away, particularly concerning the Young Men's Christian association jubilee convention at Boston. That I have not done so until now has been principally from lack of time. There were so many important things that I wanted to see or hear that I fully occupied my time with them. There was, however, a second reason.

There were gathered together 2200 delegates from all parts of the world, the best and the brightest of the association men were there, there was the most magnificent exhibit ever gotten together, covering all branches of Y. M. C. A. activity, and the meetings, the papers, the trying to take in and classify for future reference as much as possible of all that was seen and heard, produced such a composite picture in the mind that it would require too much time and space to, in any degree, cover it.

We left East Liverpool Monday morning, June 10, joined ourselves to the Ohio delegation at Cleveland, and left there on special train at 3 p. m. the same afternoon, arriving in Boston Tuesday noon. The journey was uneventful, except that it was most delightful, there being a constant visiting of delegates from one sleeper to another, a making and renewing of friendships and the good fellowship that always exists on such occasions.

Among the Ohio delegation was most of the state committee, the state secretaries, a good number of the local secretaries and many business men, friends of the association, many of them directors in the local associations. Quarters had been secured at the Adams house in Boston and most of the Ohio men stopped there. On Wednesday a very pleasant meeting of the Ohio delegation was held in the hotel parlors. A number of the wives of delegates accompanied their husbands and were present, and the occasion was a most pleasant one.

On Monday we went to Plymouth, and visited Plymouth Rock, and other points of interest there, and that evening started on our return voyage. We are now at Buffalo, taking in the Pan-American.

Of the convention itself I will not attempt to speak at any length. What impressed me first was that it was a business man's convention. The officers of the associations, used to prominence in local affairs, were here in the background, and such men as Cephas Brainard, James Stokes, Judge Spencer, and a hundred others, took prominent part.

The foreign delegates were also centers of attraction. One dressed in white, with long white silk ulster and a dozen yards of silk wound around his head in some mysterious way, a delegate from India, who had come 12,000 miles to attend the convention, was a noticeable figure. His name sounded like a college yell—I have Mr. Bulger's authority for this—so I do not attempt to write it. Mr. Williams, son of the founder of the association, was always persona grata to the convention, and they applauded him on every opportunity.

When he read a message from King Edward, addressed to the convention, the scene was indescribable. Everybody cheered and waved their handkerchiefs, and "God Save the King" was sung by the English delegates, many others joining with them. The first message from a crowned head was a long cablegram from Emperor William, of Germany. It also received an ovation. Booker T. Washington, the champion of the colored race, was as warmly received as any delegate who spoke, and his address, while not so scholarly as that of President Patton of Princeton, who preceded him, was eloquent and scholarly nevertheless. But I am only recording disjointed impressions which come up in my mind while I write.

present and the future of the Young Men's Christian association were so frequent that we were in a state of amazement continually. At least I was.

Considerable time and discussion was given to the work for boys, which has been quite prominent during the past year. As the work of the convention is formative rather than reformatory, the conviction has been growing in the minds of thinking men that, in the past, we have waited too long; that more attention should be paid to the younger boys, in an attempt to get a hold on them and form character in their youth. I do not make a speciality of prophecy, nevertheless I am convinced that this work will grow rapidly and become the most important branch of the association work in the not distant future.

Sunday meetings were never to be forgotten, especially the afternoon meeting, at which hundreds of men arose and asked that prayers be offered in their behalf. At the farewell meeting delegates from as many countries arose and repeated: "For one is our Master, even Christ, and all we are brethren," in 24 or 25 languages and dialects. No more impressive scene could be imagined than German and Frenchman, Swiss and Prussian, Spaniard and American, Chinese and Russian with all other nations standing upon this one platform and voicing this one sentiment. It brought vividly before me the Young Men's Christian association motto, John 17:21, "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they may also be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me."

Sincerely Yours,
M. C. WRIGHT.

SEWERS DISCUSSED

WORK DELAYED BECAUSE OF LACK OF PETITIONS.

Meeting of the Board of Commissioners Reveals the Cause of Inaction.

The board of sewer commissioners met last evening in the office of the Potters' Mining and Milling company, with the following members present: T. H. Arbuckle, William Cartwright, Joseph G. Lee, F. H. Croxall, H. A. McNicol.

Only one member of the special committee appointed by council some time ago to confer with the board was present. Mr. Nice has been ill for several days and Mr. Barlow did not appear. Mr. McLane was therefore compelled to represent the council alone.

The property owners on Chestnut, Pleasant, Fenton and Prospect streets have been in council night after night asking that something be done toward furnishing these thoroughfares with proper connections. The contract on Pleasant street has been let since the first of the year and work should have been commenced long ago.

It developed at the meeting that according to law the requests must come in the proper form to council signed by a majority of the property owners. This was followed out in but one instance, and that in the case of Chestnut street. It was, therefore, decided that the commissioners could do nothing until the ordinance was compiled with. The sewerage of Chestnut street will be commenced at once.

WELL-KEPT SECRET

Marriage of Mr. Frank Crook And Mrs. Agnes Moore Just Announced.

The marriage of Mr. Frank Crook, one of the city's leading merchants, and Mrs. Agnes A. Moore, has just been announced.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Clark Crawford the evening of April 23, at the residence of L. M. Thomas in this city. So well was the fact concealed that not even the most intimate friends of the contracting parties were aware of it.

Mrs. Crook has been in Pittsburg visiting relatives for several weeks, and returned to the city last evening. She was met by her husband and driven to their home on Fifth street.

The bride is a most estimable lady and well known in this city. The couple have the best wishes of a large circle of friends.

A PASSERBY WAS CALLED IN

After a Fierce Struggle in Which a Hatchet And Revolver Were Used, the Dog Was Dispatched—Great Excitement in Green Lane.

A valuable fox terrier, the property of John Johnson, went mad this morning at the home of its owner in Green lane.

There is a large family of the Johnsons, and the smaller children were playing about in the yard when the dog came up the alley from the vicinity of the Burford pottery and ran through the yard snapping at every object on his way, while froth was streaming from his mouth and the little folks, noticing this, became terrified and ran into the alley. The dog made his way straight through the house and back to the kitchen, where Miss Cora Johnson was at work. He attacked her and she would doubtless have been bitten had it not been for the plucky defense made by the lady.

Miss Johnson succeeded in beating off the animal and finally got out of the room, locking the doors. At this juncture Robert Boyd, of the West End, made his appearance, and when told of the occurrence proceeded to make way with the dog. He procured a hatchet from his wagon and went into the kitchen, where a fierce encounter took place. While the gentleman was able to keep the maddened beast at bay it was impossible to get sufficiently near to kill it.

By this time Miss Johnson had recovered her presence of mind sufficiently to remember that there was a revolver in the house and hastened to get it. Armed with the gun Mr. Boyd again entered the house and opened fire on the dog, but the first shot failed to take effect. The animal ran into a bed room and crouched under the bed, where it continued to snap and growl in threatening manner. It was impossible to get a shot at the beast from the front of the bed, and Mr. Boyd gathered up the

For Philadelphia Transit Franchises Made by John Wanamaker.

Philadelphia, June 22.—Following his offer to Mayor Ashbridge last week to pay to the city $2,500,000 for the street railway franchises granted to certain capitalists in this city by the city council, to which he received no reply, ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker last night sent a communication to Congressman Robert H. Foerderer, one of the capitalists to whom the franchises were granted, offering him a half million dollars for the franchises, in addition to giving the city the sum already offered. A few days ago Mr. Foerderer, in a newspaper interview, is alleged to have stated that Mr. Wanamaker's offer to the mayor was not sincere, and that it had a "string to it." Mr. Wanamaker, in his letter to Mr. Foerderer, denies the imputation.

Mr. Wanamaker, besides the above offer, said he would agree on the surface roads covered by the charters and the ordinances that 3-cent fares only shall be charged between the hours of 6 a. m. and 8 a. m. and 5 and 7 p. m.; and not over 5 cents for the other hours; and he would further agree that any time within 10 years the city of Philadelphia might resume the franchises upon the payment of the actual money expended and invested in the various enterprises covered by the charters and ordinances, with 6 per cent interest. He further said in part:

"I say again, as I did in my letter to the mayor, that it is not my desire to enter upon the business of railroading or to make any profit out of any municipal franchise. I merely desire the people to see how badly they have been wronged and the magnitude of the value of the property of which they have been despoiled. If you should accept the offer of this letter I will cheerfully put the franchises up to auction and give the city any sum bid for them in excess of that which I shall pay under this proposition.

"If the proposition I have made to you is not acceptable I should be glad to know what sum would tempt you and your associates to surrender the privileges you now own and which were obtained by methods so unusual and defiant of the public will as to have aroused the indignation of the people of the entire nation."

FOCH-EMERY LAWS IN COURT.

Lawrence County, Pa., Farmer Under-takes to Test Rights of Trolley Companies on His Land.

New Castle, Pa., June 22.—Judge Wallace has granted a preliminary injunction against the New Castle and Lowellville and the Mahoning Valley Street Railway companies, restraining them from laying their tracks across the farm of Fred Kincaid, of Mahoning township. The companies made no effort to reach an agreement with Kincaid, and he applied to the court for protection.

The companies rely on the provisions of the Foch and Emery bills, which give to electric railway companies certain rights of eminent domain, such as the railroads have long enjoyed. This will be the first time this question has been brought up.

The hearing is set for next Friday. Meantime the injunction practically puts a stop for the time being to work upon the line, which is to connect this city with Youngstown.

CAMPBELL TO QUIT OHIO.

Reported the Ex-Governor Is to Live in New York City.

Columbus, June 22.—A special from Hamilton, O., says that former Governor James E. Campbell is shipping his goods to New York city, preparing to become a resident there and a citizen of the Empire state. Though engaged in the practice of law in New York occasionally for some time he has always maintained a legal and actual residence at Hamilton, and often had declared that he never would leave his native state. This change marks the end of his notable career in Ohio, and it is probable he never again will give attention to public affairs.

STRIKERS ARE ENJOINED.

Jackson Issues an Injunction Against Mine Workers About Matewan.

Parkersburg, W. Va., June 22.—In the United States court last evening Judge John J. Jackson duplicated for the coal operators about Matewan, W. Va., his famous sweeping injunction issued against the striking miners of the Fairmont field a year or two ago, which was so bitterly fought by the United Mine Workers.

The injunction was issued against three lodges of the United Mine Workers and 82 miners, whose names are given, and others in coal field about Matewan, where the battle between the deputies and strikers occurred.

Cailles to Surrender Monday.

Manila, June 22.—General Callas, the insurgent commander in Laguna province, with 700 riflemen and some Bolomen, was in the vicinity of Paganjan, about a day's march from Santa Cruz, on Laguna de Bay. Callas will surrender Monday, after which he is expected to assist in bringing in Malvar, who, in reality, is his superior officer.

BABY MISSING

Child Could Not Walk But It Disappeared Suddenly And Completely.

Chardon, O., June 22.—Willie Gray, a boy 16 months old, has disappeared from his home under such peculiar circumstances that the officials who are investigating the matter expect to turn up a tragedy.

The disappearance of the child was first reported to the police by neighbors. The boy disappeared last Monday. His mother, Cora Gray, an unmarried girl 21 years old, says she was sitting in the house and the boy was playing on the floor. He crawled out through an open door and she has never seen him since.

The child could not walk. The mother says she did not give the alarm because she thought the baby would come back. Cora Gray lives with her parents in a log house, near Burton. It is on the edge of a large swamp and about 80 rods from the Cuyahoga river. The officers are inclined to think that the baby found its death in the swamp or the river.

The sheriff, coroner and every available officer is working on the case.

Stoutsville, Mo., May 5, 1900.

Gentlemen—I have been troubled with indigestion and constipation for the past two years, and have tried every remedy known, and had never received any relief until I was handed a trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepesin, through our druggist, J. BEEKEEPING.

An Occupation For Women In Which There Is Profit.

Bees, did you say? I see again in memory my grandmother's house in the country long ago. Outside the windows of the big room where we girls slept was a porch, its pillars covered with honeysuckle vines so thick you could not see the posts at all. In the early summer thousands of blossoms opened and poured upon the air sweetest, richest fragrance. I used to lie on my bed of summer mornings, those odors of paradise floating over me, listening to the bz-z-z, wz-z-z, hm-n-n of bee, humming bird and bumblebee that haunted those honey blossoms. I was listening to the great, mysterious key-note of the universe, the note of industry and harmony, of perseverance and a skill of paradise floating over me, listening to the bz-z-z, wz-z-z, hm-n-n of bee, humming bird and bumblebee that haunted those honey blossoms. UNEXPECTED REFORM.

The New York city board of aldermen is about the last body on earth to which those having even a passing acquaintance with it would look for reform. But the unexpected is always happening, and the aldermen of the metropolis are seriously considering a reform, which, if inaugurated, will be a blessing to millions. They propose to compel the street railway companies to run enough cars to accommodate their patrons. The rules to be laid down and enforced are these:

"It shall be unlawful to carry more than five passengers in a cross seat and the space belonging there. It shall be unlawful for any person to enter such compartment and trespass upon the rights of previous occupants by standing in such narrow space. For violating the first section the conductor shall be fined $5 to $10 for each offense. For violating the second the passengers shall be fined from $2 to $5 for each offense."

The street railway companies, receiving their valuable franchises from the city, are subject to the direction of ordinances regulating their business, so far as the public is affected. The proposed ordinance is a perfectly just and proper one. The public has rights that should not be infringed. A man who pays a nickel for a ride in a street car is as much entitled to reasonable accommodation as if he had paid $2 for a seat in a Pullman car.

New York, though less progressive than hundreds of smaller cities, will set an example for the whole country, if she succeeds in enacting and enforcing the proposed regulations.

THE FILIPINOS' FOURTH.

The Fourth of July is to be celebrated in the Philippines islands, both by natives and Americans. The celebration will mean as much to the former as to the latter. Americans do not have to be told what the Glorious Fourth signifies. To the Filipinos the first Fourth of July of the twentieth century is to be birthday of liberty. It is officially announced that Judge Taft, president of the Philippine commission, is to be inaugurated as civil governor of the islands on the anniversary of American independence. This will be the initial step toward the establishment of civil government in the islands. It means a new order of things for a people that are just beginning to appreciate the sweets of liberty and the protection of the American flag.

ENFORCING OLD LAWS.

The ancient Pennsylvania Blue laws are to be enforced in Pittsburgh without fear or favor, according to notice served by the new recorder of that city. Those who have been clamoring for their retention on the statute books will now have a chance to see how eighteenth century statutes fit twentieth century conditions. A strict enforcement of the Pennsylvania laws would close drug stores, stop railway trains and street cars, stop all mills and prevent any sort of manual labor not a work of necessity, on Sunday. The Pittsburgh enforcement is not likely to go to that length, but if it should the fate of the Blue laws would be settled in short order.

Ex-Postmaster General Wanamaker, whose offer of $2,000,000 for street railway franchises was rejected by the mayor, who preferred to give them away, follows up his offer by tendering the holders of the franchises $500,000 for their surrender. His enemies call his offers "bluff." If they are, they are bluffs that should be called.

If the citizens of Minerva are able to raise $20,000 to secure new industries, it strikes us that those of East Liverpool might do something in the same line with fully as much ease if they would bend their energies to the task.

Gleanings Of a Day In and About The Local Potteries.

The resolutions favoring an increase in the salary of the national officers of the N. B. of O. P. have brought out some very odd objections, particularly to a very great increase in the salary of Secretary T. J. Duffy. The most astounding objection is phrased thus: "It is not necessary to increase his salary much, because he is not married and has no one to keep, but himself."

That must be an old English idea. It surely did not originate in this country where brains and ability are appreciated and modern trades unionists believe in recompensing their leaders.

Really the potters ought to be thankful that Secretary Duffy is not married and that he is free to give his undivided attention to this trade, just when it most needs his services, as an organizer and tactician.

We have confidence, at least in the younger element of the trade, that such old fogey arguments as mentioned above will never again rule in the pottery trade of this country. The Brotherhood has carried the pottery craft past such ancient tactics and there is no prospect of it taking any more backward steps. The trade was held back long enough. Onward is the watchword now.—"Mack," in the Commoner and Glassworker.

SOUTH SIDE

LEGAL BATTLE MAY COME

As a Result of a Dispute Between Chester Council And Finley Brothers.

The street committee of council and Finley Bros. are engaged in a dispute which, according to an interested person's statement, is very likely to terminate in a legal battle.

Finley Bros. recently purchased a lot on Indiana avenue which was filled up several feet in order to make it level with the surrounding ground. In wet weather the water from the hillside above runs down to the lot adjoining it and forms a pond which, it is said, occasionally overflows into the cellar of a residence nearby.

The street committee are trying to decide whether Finley Bros. have obstructed a natural waterway and have consulted the solicitor about the matter. Finley Bros. have likewise consulted an attorney, and say they will give council permission to run a sewer pipe under the ground.

COLLEGE MEN NEED FAITH.

Holy Ghost Graduates Addressed by Dr. Thomas J. Conaty—Medals Awarded For Scholarship.

Pittsburg, June 22.—Amid the applause of thousands of admiring friends, the graduates of the Pittsburg Catholic College of the Holy Ghost last night received diplomas from the hands of Bishop Phelan. The exercises of the twenty-third commencement of the institution were held in the Grand Opera house, and consisted of orations by the seniors and musical selections by the College Glee club and orchestra.

Rt. Rev. Mgr. Thomas J. Conaty, doctor of sacred theology, of the Catholic university at Washington, was the principal speaker and addressed the graduates on "The Catholic College Man in the Twentieth Century." In part Dr. Conaty said:

"The college man needed by the new century is a man with faith and hope in God and in his fellow man, as well as with a knowledge of classics and scientific learning. In him should be the hope which argues immortality, and the will which finds its perfection in obedience to the eternal laws. Herein is to be found the Christian gentleman, whose life is a blessing to his fellow men, because his character exemplifies his faith in God and his hope in immortality."

BARKER FOUND GUILTY.

KELLER ISSUES STATEMENT DENYING WOMAN'S CHARGES.

Jury Unanimous and For Highest Punishment Under Law—Court Almost Instructed For Guilt.

New York, June 22.—The jury before which Thomas G. Barker, of Arlington, N. J., was tried for shooting with intent to kill the Rev. John Keller, of the same town, took one ballot and returned with a verdict of guilty.

Barker last night found himself once more an inmate of the county jail. He must remain there until $10,000 bail is furnished. Before him stands a possible seven years' imprisonment and a fine of as much as $2,000.

Mrs. Barker was not in the court room to hear the verdict. She was in another part of the court house and when told of the verdict sobbed bitterly. Mr. Keller was also absent and showed no emotion when told of the verdict. Barker had expected an acquittal. He based his hopes upon the strong plea of his counsel, when he dwelt upon the unwritten law that a man has a right to kill where the sanctity of his home is assailed. Whatever the effect of this line of pleading upon the jury, it was swept away by the cold charge of the court that "the story of the alleged outrage, or the outrage itself, if true, was no justification of the defendant's assault."

The court explained he had admitted evidence that Barker had been told of an alleged assault, not because it had anything to do with the case, but because it was for the jury to determine if the story had anything to do with making the defendant criminally irresponsible. If they believed the defendant was sane at the time of the shooting they must convict.

In his closing Prosecutor Erwin asked the jurors if the woman's course was the natural one. He said her story was improbable because Mrs. Barker would, in the natural course, have told her husband of the assault at once, and, failing that, would have made a confidant of a woman and not of another man.

The jury's only ballot was unanimous for guilty and a fine for the highest degree charged.

Mr. Keller, as soon as the trial was completed, issued a brief statement, in which he absolutely denied the truth of the allegations that have been made and published by Mrs. Barker.

Barker will probably be sentenced on Thursday next and then his counsel will file the papers in an appeal to the supreme court.

The wounds were dressed and the man made as comfortable as possible, but he still suffers considerably.

Mr. Moncrief was standing over an escape pipe when he was caught by the steam which came on suddenly. He was terribly burned about the groins and abdomen before he could get out of reach of the scalding vapor. His suffering was intense until the doctor arrived and dressed the wounds. He will probably be unable to work for some time.

THE SCORE A TIE

Met Under Difficulties—Six Innings Played And the Score 6 to 6.

The Wellsburg and East Liverpool baseball teams got together yesterday under great difficulties. Though they were unable to play at the West End grounds, the teams succeeded in getting through their second game at Rock Springs park. The rain of Thursday night rendered the West End grounds unfit for use, but it was not until after dinner that the decision was reached to go over to Rock Springs.

When the players finally did reach the grounds they found that the street railway employees had arranged for the use of the diamond, and for a time it was thought the game would have to be called off. However, the street car people agreed to give up the grounds, and after a long delay the contest started.

About two hundred spectators were present when the game was called. Several changes in the lineup of the home team were made from that of yesterday, Wallace playing first base and Rark shortstop. Their work, together with that of Davis at third, was splendid, and saved the team from defeat. Owing to darkness only six innings were played, the game resulting in a tie—6 to 6.

McShane and Millward composed the battery for the home team and Ferguson and Farrell were the Wellsburg battery. The grounds were in poor condition owing to the rain, and the players were somewhat handicapped as a consequence.

The Wellsburg aggregation left for their home on the evening train, and the game scheduled for today was therefore called off.

RUSSIA ACTED HASTILY.

SECRETARY HAY TO SO REPRE-
SENT TO THAT GOVERNMENT.

sue Statement Defining Our Attitude.

Washington, June 22.—As a result
of the consideration of the entire matter
by the cabinet Secretary Hay will
soon make representations to the Russian government fully explaining
the attitude of this country and pointing
out that Russia has acted hastily
and under a misapprehension of the
facts in her position of retaliation.

A statement was issued by the secretary of the treasury.

The statement said in part that on June 18, 1890, an importation of crude
oil from Russia, refined in England,
came to Rochester, N. Y. A collector
imposed a duty, as if it came from Russia, and the general appraisers of
New York approved. Action toward
having consuls secure real origin of
shipments followed. No country protested except Russia. Action was taken under the provisions of the Dingley act. The statement further
said in part:

"Upon this statement of facts the officials
are at a great loss to understand how Russia can feel aggrieved at the government's action and inaugurate a system of
discriminating duties against products of
the United States in consequence. It is hoped that Secretary Hay will be able to present the facts so that Russia will re-
scind her action and will show that she is
not seeking to be unjust to this country
in tariff matters. The cabinet feels that
the administration has a strong case and believes that Russia is entirely friendly
and will be made to see that her action
in this case has not been such as to call
forth the most friendly feeling in this
country."

Low Hairdressing and the Con-
sequent Abandoned Collar.

The low coiffure has become an accomplished fact with the Parisienne,
although it is difficult to realize that
she has abandoned the knot gathered
high on the head, which is so chic and
so well becomes the majority of wom-
ankind.

But so it is. For day wear she adopts
a middle course, the hair mostly gathered
into a knot of small curls and
puffs, not lying too close to the back
of the head, and in the evening, at
theater and restaurant, the hair lies in
a heavy coil or loop on the nape of the
neck.

This, of course, means the abandon-
ment of the collar, and all the summer
dresses, excepting, of course, the tailor
costume, are being made with no col-
lars at all except a transparent piece
of lace, the top of the chemisette being
drawn up close to the throat with a threading of ribbon. Such a mode is eminently becoming to the French-
woman, who is usually inclined to be
high shouldered and short necked, but
how will it fare with the American,
with her longer and more swanlike
throat? However, the flat seems to be that the hair is to be dressed low
and the collar must go.

In pretty printed muslins and gauzes
Marie Antoinette styles find latest favor, and with them go those flat plateau hats wreathed with flowers, with shepherdess bows falling on to the hair

the Modern Ones a Big Improvement
on the Old Style.

The balloon was a feature of some
big exhibition, and every day it was
inflated and made an ascent, with four
or five passengers, in charge of an experienced aeronaut. There were about
five in the party the day I took the trip.
We got into the basket, which was
boxed in quite high, then let the rope
go, and we shot up about 3,000 feet. It
was interesting to look down on the world and hear the noises of London
streets coming from so far below. The
balloon sailed along smoothly, and we
drifted for about eight miles.

"It was when we tried to descend
that the trouble began. The method
was to throw out anchors as the balloon settled toward the earth. The
aeronaut said that when one of these
anchors caught firmly he would haul
the balloon down to the tree in which
the anchor was expected to become
fastened. This would be done by winding in the rope on a winch in the car.
We would be expected to climb out of
the balloon into the tree, he said, and
he would then take hold of the valve
rope and, standing a safe distance
away, open the valve, let the gas escape, and the big affair would collapse
and sink. He informed us that we
must get clear of the sinking folds, as
they would come down fast, and if
they caught and covered us we would
be in an atmosphere of most poisonous
gas.

"All this was very interesting, but
we did not seem to be making very
much progress toward the point where
we would have to look out for the de-
scending folds of the collapsing balloon. The anchors caught in a whole lot of trees, but they did not hold. One
would get tangled in a tree, and then
the balloon would sway far over, till-
ing the basket in which we were until
it seemed that we would be spilled out.
Then the anchor would break loose,
and we would shoot up again.

"I became very tired of this and told
the aeronaut that I thought it was time
to bring the voyage to a conclusion.
He told me if I did not like it I could
jump out. At first I thought he was simply resentful of my remark, but he
said he meant what he said.

"When the car tilts over again, you
climb out on the edge," he said, "and let
go. It will probably be a plowed field
underneath us, and you won't get hurt."

"Well, I did as he suggested. When
the anchor caught again, I climbed out
and hung to the edge of the car. When
I saw that the car was as low as it was likely to get, I let go. I dropped about 12 feet, and, as he expected, a plowed
field was below us.

"As soon as I dropped out the balloon, relieved of my weight, shot up in
the air again and soared off. I walked
to the nearest road and continued along
it until I came to an inn.

"I asked the landlord how far it was to London, and he told me it was eight miles. I ordered a carriage to take me
there, and while I was waiting the
landlord asked me where I had come
from.

"I took him to the door of the inn,
and, pointing to the balloon, which was
then sailing along about a quarter of a
mile above the ground, I said, 'I jumped
out of that.'

"The man looked at me in alarmed
fashion, and after I had returned to the
sitting room I noticed that several people
peered through the window at me.

"Finally my four wheeler was ready,
and I set off for London. After we had
driven along for half an hour or so the
coachman suddenly turned the horse in
through a gate, and we drove into a big
courtyard. I yelled to him and asked
him what he meant, that I wanted to
go straight to London, but he paid no
attention and slowly circled the court.
When he stopped on the other side, a
man wearing glasses stuck his head in
the carriage, scrutinizing me closely,
pulled back, said something to the
coachman, and we drove on to London.

"Finally we reached my lodgings,
and when we did so the coachman
jumped off the box, ran up the steps
and as soon as his knock was answered
asked if Mr. Blakeman lived there.
The maid was just answering that I
did when I reached the top of the steps
and collared the fellow.

"What was that place you drove me
into on our way to London?" I asked
him.

"It was a binsane haslyam, sir," he replied. "When you said you had jumped
out of that balloon, we thought you
were crazy and maybe you was a escaped patient from the haslyam!"—

brute; "my friends told me so at the
time, but I didn't realize it until after
we were married."—Kansas City Star.

never have occurred but for a friend I

me to accompany him.

inflated and made an ascent, with four
or five passengers, in charge of an ex-

SEVENTEEN DEATHS

May be Awful Record of Explosions of Fourth of July Fireworks.

NUMBER OF PERSONS HURT.

Apartments Above Stores at Paterson, N. J., Became Ablaze—Some Who Escaped Death Rescued, or Had to Jump.

New York, June 22—Seventeen people are believed to have been killed and a number injured as the result of a fire following an explosion among a quantity of fireworks in the store of Abraham M. Rittenburg at Paterson, N. J. The store was on the ground floor of a tenement building. The cause of the explosion is not known and the property loss will not exceed $35,000.

The Injured:
Mr. J. Jessup, bruised about the head and body and burned about head. Mrs. J. Jessup, bruised and burned about body.

I. Bamber, head and face burned. George Soder, head severely cut. Nicholas Hilmann, cut on head.

Fireman Edward Singsland, injured by falling wall.

Mr. and Mrs. John McGlone, burned about face and bodies.

So great was the force of the explosion that a boy playing in the street half a block away was lifted from his feet and hurled against an iron fence. One of his legs was broken.

Some of the occupants of the rooms dropped from the windows and were bruised, others hung from the windows until the firemen came and 20 persons were taken down in this way through the fire and smoke by the firemen, while others dropped into life nets.

Daniel Dooley saw the two Rittenberg children in the rear room and rescued one, but could not get the other. He was badly scorched in rescuing the first child.

The whole upper part of the building sagged outward and fell and Captain Allen and two of his men were buried under the blazing debris. One of the men is badly hurt.

Rittenburg will probably be arrested pending an investigation.

The Bodies Found:

Mrs. Lucinda Adamson. Mrs. Charles Williams, burned while trying to rescue husband.

Charles Williams, helpless cripple, unable to leave bed.

Harold Rittenburg, 10 months, child of the keeper of the fireworks store.

Willie Elsasser, six weeks old, mother kept baker store.

Mrs. Bert Bamber, whose husband is in hospital.

Bamber, 6 months old.

Mrs. Andrew Elvin, head only found; trunk missing.

Mrs. Ann Burns.

Clarence Burns, 6 years old, found clasped in his mother's arms.

Mrs. Annie Lannigan.

Mrs. Mary Duffy.

Total number of bodies recovered, 12.

The Missing:

Joseph Elvin, 2 weeks old, mother's head found.

Mrs. Anne Fenneman.

Two nephews of Mrs. Lannigan, whose body has been found.

Mrs. Mary Elssasser, kept baker shop; child's body found.

Man Struck Telegraph Wires and Sustained Few Cuts.

Chicago, June 22.—George R. Lawrence, a photographer, who attempted to take a bird's-eye view of the stock yards from a balloon, was thrown from his car after it had risen about 50 feet. The accident was caused by the breaking of a cross bar.

Lawrence struck a web of telegraph wires and was not injured beyond a few cuts.

The balloon continued its upward flight and soon disappeared.

MRS. M'KINLEY'S CONDITION

CONSIDERED FAVORABLE.

Washington, June 22.—Reports regarding Mrs. McKinley's condition continued of a favorable nature. Confidence is expressed that she will be able to be removed to Canton early in July.

Sympathy Over Pingree's Death.

London, June 22.—The North German Lloyd steamer Koenigin Louise will not sail this week, so the body of Hazen S. Pingree, the former governor of Michigan, who died here on Tuesday, will be taken to the United States on the Red Star line steamer Zealand, sailing Sunday at noon from Southampton for New York. There will be no religious service here. Many Americans have called on Mr. Pingree's son or left their cards at his residence.

Enlisted Men Appointed Officers.

Indicted a Police Captain.

New York June 22.—The grand jury indicted Police Captain John D. Herlihy who was in charge of the Eldridge street station during a recent anti-vise crusade for neglect of duty.

DRESS AND FASHION

The Princess Gown Again in Favor. Skirts Mold the Hips and Swirl Out at the Feet—The Deceptive Simplicity of Cottons and Muslins.

The whole trend of dress is toward the picturesque. Flowered silks, graceful fichus, elbow ruffles and picture hats satisfy the artist's eye when worn by the right person and in the right manner.

Skirts are either immaculately cut, molded to the hips and swirling out at the feet or fully gathered (for thin materials), with a mere hint of paniers on the hips.

NEW MINISTER ARRIVES

Rev. W. H. Baynan Will Take Charge of the Baptist Congregation in This City.

Rev. W. H. Baynan, the new pastor who will take charge of the Baptist congregation in this city, arrived yesterday afternoon from the Dennison university. He was expected Thursday, but was delayed. The new minister is a graduate of the above university, but has not yet been ordained. It is probable he will be ordained some time next week. Rev. Mr. Baynan will leave East Liverpool in October and go to the theological seminary at Chicago.

The new church is rapidly nearing completion, but it is not known just at what time it will be ready for occupancy. The meetings will continue in the Smith Fowler hall until the new edifice is finished.

At present the congregation numbers about 30 members, but it is thought that when the new church is once dedicated the membership can be increased to at least 80 persons in a short time.

Lisbon, June 22.—(Special)—Margaret Sullivan, administrator of the estate of Michael Sullivan, late of Leetonia, today filed an action in common pleas court for damages against the Cherry Valley Iron company. She alleges that on January 13, 1901, her husband was employed by the defendant at its blast furnaces in Leetonia, and was required by the company to go upon a scaffold to open and close drafts in the hot blast above. The scaffold, she says, was not properly constructed, and Sullivan was not informed that the planks were loose. He stepped on the loose end of a plank, fell through to the ground and died of his injuries. She asks $10,000 damages.

The case of Lucy C. Carnegie vs. Isabella Coleman et al was appealed by the defendant to the circuit court. The action was on a foreclosure of a mortgage.
